The Synapsis

Believing as we do, that this annual compilation is to serve in a capacity allegorically similar to the anatomic unit in that it is to ever communicate the personnel and activities of one phase of animated existence to another more remote; that it shall transmit in the absence of a corporeal association; and that its preservation will make for an organized, co-ordinated, integrated, osteopathic whole; we, representing and executing the will of the Junior Class of 1924-25, do identify it—"The Synapsis." May the supplications for its longevity, solicitations for its maintenance, and beseechings for the realization of its salubrious purposes encounter cordiality in the hands of our successors. We present for your inspection, with the humble felicity of achievement,.....

Foreword

The privilege of participating in so profound an endeavor and experiencing the ultimate sensation of intrinsic joy, is for but a few. We are truly happy.

We have herein essayed to tabulate and accurately portray the divers existences and energies of this, our cherished Ahna Mater. If such seems not complete, let us here preclude any possibility of such recurring by pledging ourselves to support in every measure, the labors of our worthy successors—the Class of '27.

The COLLEGE

SYNOPSIS

Our Alma Mater

In response to a manifestly growing demand for an institution of osteopathic instruction, Dr. O. J. Snyder, leading a small band of votive disciples in 1899, formally founded and legally chartered the Philadelphia College of Osteopathy.

Through the ensuing years, growth has been uniformly progressive. The college has consistently taken the commendable initiative in elevating the scholastic criterion of Osteopathy; and the essential present reveals for inspection an Alma Mater . . . firmly established at the center of the osteopathic sphere of the East and . . .

SYNOPSIS

SENIOR HALL IN THE MAIN COLLEGE BUILDING

.....affording the professional aspirant every assurance and facility essential to his usefulness and success in the world of rational therapeutics.

LABORATORY OF BIOLOGICAL SCIENCE

Classroom didactic work is substantially supported by practical, reassuring demonstrations in well-equipped, properly proportioned laboratories. Particularly emphasized to the student during the elementary phases of his training are the fundamentals which underlie all life—the adaptations, the compensations and specializations.....

LABORATORY OF HISTOLOGICAL SCIENCES

.....for it is held that a comprehension of basics is an asset indispensable to the subsequent phases of scientific development. Therefore, too, the histological sciences dealing with the various physiological and pathological anatomies of the cellular unit of structure are stressed

SYNOPSIS

EAST WALL OF THE CHEMISTRY LABORATORY

.....and chemistry is so presented and demonstrated in its several forms that its application in ultimate analytical endeavors may yield revealing diagnostic data.

BACTERIOLOGY LABORATORY

The import of microorganisms in the production of disease cannot be rationally questioned. Bacteriology as propounded in P. C. O. involves a well-established didactic course and an absolute laboratory application thereof, for.....

SYNOPSIS

DISSECTION ROOM

.....the value of practical work cannot be doubted. For that reason a course in human dissection is presented. Elaborate prosections are made as a guide to the student, and subsequent individual indulgence is insisted upon. An intimacy with structure is essential, for.....

PHYSIOLOGY LABORATORY IN THE COLLEGE ANNEX

.....when incorporated into a practical working acquaintanceship of physiology, a functioning mechanism is recognized; and such knowledge, properly applied, can but lead to the most desirable forms of therapeutic success.

SYNOPSIS

LADIES' REST ROOM

A lounging room has been provided by the college at a convenient location in the main college building. The quarters are available to all women students.

SYNOPSIS

One of the most salient features and irrefutable advantages to the student in the Philadelphia College of Osteopathy, is the availability of a modern, sixty-bed hospital, equipped with all the institutional details which determine efficiency and modernism.

This asset affords the professional aspirant the opportunity to practically apply, under proficient supervision, the clinical methods and therapeutic principles acquired in the classroom and laboratory.

HOSPITAL FOYER

The student's introduction into the actual scholastic practice of Osteopathy is accomplished through supervised association with the Out-Patient Clinic. Here the requisite abundance of clinical material is afforded, as only a city of Philadelphia's size can provide. In conjunction with a series of properly furnished treating rooms at student disposal is.....

SYNOPSIS

OBSTETRICAL ROOM

...the management of pregnancy and management of labor. It is the excellence of this phase of Osteopathy which has won for its practitioners, merits of which to be proud.

SURGICAL AMPHITHEATRE

Surgery plays an important role as the radical form of treatment in Osteopathy. Students are rigidly drilled in its selection, preparations and precautions, and general operative phases of its divers forms. Internship includes active assistance in practical surgery.

PRIVATE ROOM IN THE OSTEOPATHIC HOSPITAL OF PHILADELPHIA

The present capacity of the Osteopathic Hospital of Philadelphia is sixty beds. This includes eight private and nine semi-private rooms, as well as four wards.

The staff feels itself well equipped to render an ultra form of therapeutic service to a confident clientele.

Alma Mater

*Hail, Alma Mater, dear,
To thee our love declare;
To us be ever near,
Through all the years.
Help us thy truth to see;
Teach us staunch sons to be,
Striving continually,
P. C. O. for thee.*

*When we depart from thee,
Serving where need we see,
Strengthen our loyalty,
Our trust in thee.
Guide us in all aright,
Give us through wisdom, sight;
Grant us to ever fight,
P. C. O. for thee.*

*And when our work complete,
Our course on earth is ceased,
Judge us thy sons and mete
Our task well done:
Increase from day to day,
Daughters and sons, we pray,
To serve and live for thee,
P. C. O. for thee.*

Greetings to the Class of 1925

*"I slept and dreamt that life was Beauty;
I woke and found that life was Duty!"*

FOR four years you have lived in your own distinct microcosm-college, more or less unmindful of the world outside. Your interests have been intensive; your tendencies, introspective. Commencement marks the drop from your tiny world back to earth again.

Here at the Philadelphia College you have learned the need of application and study; you have felt the stimulus of scientific training. But if you have not learned the principles of true democracy, then college for you has been a failure. Toleration without patronage, the ability to see things through another man's eyes, a sincere outlook on the world with principle, not policy, as a basis—these are more necessary than anatomy and chemistry, and more potent than a strong back and arms.

Of the current views of life we select the highest and strive to transcend the average thought and tone. Education is thus a distinctly personal work and varies between wide extremes of effectiveness and worth. No state is any stronger than its individual citizens; its physical power is the sum total of their fitness and readiness; its mental worth is reckoned by the amount of their diligence and effort; its moral strength is the direct result of their attitude one toward another.

The reward of your diligence is the commission to go forth and serve. Your labor will be the labor of love for mankind and your purpose the betterment of humanity. Go where duty calls. It is the end and aim of the highest life.

Graduation is the time of "Farewell" to Alma Mater and college associates and associations; yet, there have been welded bonds of loyalty and mutual interests too mighty to be torn asunder.

"Where your treasure is, there will your heart be also."

You leave behind you a Faculty sincerely interested in your welfare. You are moving forward to join with them in devotion to worthy ideals and in service to others.

May loyalty to Alma Mater and duty to mankind attend your journey!

DEAN EDGAR O. HOLDEN.

Senior Class History

WITH only a few more months ahead of us, we begin to realize how difficult it is to apply the knowledge we have so painfully acquired in the past four years of digging and grinding. Even now faint recollections of the first encounters with Anatomy fleet across our minds and slight traces of dissection room odors register in the proper centers of the encephalon. Long since have we ceased to throw out our chests at the expense of several vest buttons, when our patients call us "Doctor."

Of the eighty-five of our matriculating class, there remain sixty-one, including a number who have joined us from sister institutions. During our Sophomore year the Freshman greetings were furthered and regulations were levied. This will long be remembered by many of our class as well as by the Class of 1926, upon whom regulations were imposed. It was during this time that an unforeseen class fight took place in the neighborhood of Spring Garden Street, between the college on the south, Phi Sigma Gamma Fraternity House on the north, and the Iota Tau Sigma House a few squares west of these. It was a memorable day when the Class of 1926 laid siege to the Class of 1925, who were barricaded in a Fraternity House at 2038 Spring Garden Street. All classes were automatically suspended for the day and the contest lasted from early in the morning until late in the afternoon, when it was abruptly ended by the Faculty of the College.

The Junior Prom was established by our class and has been diligently carried on by the Class of 1926.

SYNOPSIS

During our third year, Carl Fischer succeeded in winning the intercollegiate tennis championship. It was also during our third year that one member of the class was married. During the following summer, three more men followed suit.

In the fourth year, distinction was gained through winning the interclass baseball championship. In this year the first extracurricular Senior Society was formed in the college with a total of ten charter members.

There have been many improvements in the college buildings, classrooms and laboratories within recent years as well as an increase in the number of Faculty members, all of which have inspired us to do better in preparing ourselves for the great work which lies so short a distance before us.

In passing, we believe that our class has contributed loyally to the history of our college. May she carry her common sense, her wisdom, her enterprise, her sense of duty, her every virtue into new fields and prove that what has occurred within the college walls is but the merest forecast of her future labors in the professional world.

Junior Class History

IN SEPTEMBER, 1922, the ship of the present Junior Class sailed into the port of P. C. O., the first lap of their four-year venture on Osteopathic Seas. Within the Port of Freshmania, our officers were elected for the first year:

Paul H. Hatch, President.
 Ralph A. Pierpont, Vice-President.
 Dorothy Galbraith, Secretary.
 McClellan F. Bashline, Treasurer.

The seas laid calm before us, stretching away to the far horizon and promising much.

Three years have we been upon the Seas of Osteopathic training with many heavy, weary, stormy nights passed through, some of the crew becoming discouraged and deserting at intermediate points and ports. Most of us, however, have weathered the storms like true sailors, and as the future looms before us we are determined to stick by the ship until she comes safely to anchor in the redeeming Port of Graduation.

As we swing into the lee of P. C. O., there were some swaggering pirates who attacked us and essayed to enslave us. They tried to make us wear rakish clothes and do uncivilized acts; but our crew to a man rebelled. There were several lively skirmishes with a mutual list of casualties and a liberal distribution of iodine and methylene blue. A "rush" was decided upon to determine whether we should go free or remain enslaved to the Sophs. The night before the set day, several of our crew were seized and placed in chains, and deprived of their essential garments in the camp of the enemy. The next day our men attacked the stronghold of the Sophs and such fighting ensued that the officials of the port called a halt to it . . . just before the Sophomores were about to be scalped.

In the ensuing months, a great deal of entertainment was afforded us by our late enemies and we in return acted as host at a dance of peace.

At the end of the year we set sail for Sophomorania. As we arrived a closely scudding ship was sighted, heading for Freshmania. We halted them without bloodshed and upon learning their intentions, admonished them and instructed them in what to wear and how to conduct themselves when they arrived. They, fearing for their safety, lived up to every rule and regulation . . . a peace-loving tribe they were. While in Sophomorania, we elected to succeed our first staff:

Paul G. Norris, President.
Irma A. Davis, Vice-President.
Dorothy Galbraith, Secretary.
Syl J. O'Brien, Treasurer.

We passed through several severe storms and many high seas in the second year, but they but strengthened our confidence in our leaders and enhanced our determination to stand together as a unit.

As we left the port of Sophomorania, and set sail for Junioria we realized what lay behind us and were uncertain of the seas ahead, but were confident that a real fighting crew had been developed. Through the stormy days of the recent past we never once lowered our sails, making progress even when the waves were the highest. The officers so nobly leading us this year are:

William O. Kingsbury, President.
Jean L. Sheperla, Vice-President.
Robert R. Lewis, Secretary.
Syl J. O'Brien, Treasurer.

As we near the port of Seniora, we realize that the shoals and undercurrents are not yet entirely behind us and even after we become citizens of that promising world of Osteopathy, we will be called upon to show more of that real seamanship which has so marked our past. We are now standing in the bow with winds of the future filling our sails, looking for the light of the promised land.

SYNOPSIS

DONALD K. ACTON

Philadelphia, Pa.

Iota Tau Sigma.

Don is one of our representatives on the tennis team which is lobbying our college to fame. His voice in matters, though seldom, is always appropriate.

CARSON L. ADAMS

Philadelphia, Pa.

Iota Tau Sigma.

One of the daddies of our class, who has attained the singular distinction of being Hazelton's sparring partner. Ted's out-of-school activities consist mainly of selling Chryslers and taking care of Junior.

C. DONALD AMIDON

Rome, N. Y.

"Ami" cuts a long figure in both baseball and basketball, but must let it all out on the diamond, for he's quite subdued around school.

McCLELLAN F. BASHLINE

Lawsonham, Pa.

The honorable, reverend McClellan lends us his name, that we may be more intimately related to the renowned up-State surgeon.

JAMES F. BATES

Paulsboro, N. J.

"Bozo" thinks maybe his rating as a not-yet Senior warrants his indulgence in bubbling boisterousness, but were it not for a few like him our class would be pretty dead.

SYNOPSIS

Laura A. Bernard

LAURA A. BERNARD

Mary Goodfellow Bisher.*

CHARLES A. BLADES

Avon-by-the-Sea, N. J.

Theta Psi.

One of our few outstanding conscientious workers. Don't mind that ministerial air; that's an hereditary influence.

ALEXANDER BOTHWELL

Bristol, Conn.

"Al" is a dynamic sort and a genius at salesmanship. His offerings to the clinic are numerous, and certainly indicative of scholastic effort.

Wesley B. Bradley

WESLEY B. BRADLEY

Albany, N. Y.

"Brad" was the class delegate on the briny depths last summer, and no doubt trained for his position as class "outlook," for which he is by nature fitted.

SYNOPSIS

WILLIAM B. BUXTON

The fame of the Duke of Upper York has spread to foreign lands, and it may be said of him that he is Cupid's international disciple. How does Utica get along without him?

EGBERT M. COLLARD
Ocean City, N. J.

Atlas Club.

"Bart" is the "Hairbreadth Harry" of our class, but vows that Palmolive soap has nothing to do with it. A capital chap and conscientious in his every endeavor.

CLARENCE R. COOK
Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

Theta Psi.

Clarence has distinguished himself as a laborer in the interests of the class. He holds a seat in most of the committees, and does his bit loyally.

FLORENCE A. COLTON
Northfield, Mass.

Kappa Psi Delta.

One can always isolate these semi-nary girls in any crowd. Perhaps it is this preliminary training that accounts for her demure reticence. A gem for a quiet, interesting chat, though.

EDGAR L. COPP
Bridgewater, Mass.

Phi Sigma Gamma.

Eddie sure can show the Profs a most innocent physiognomy. He's one of our great co-operators, and has our sincere wishes in all his undertakings.

Handwritten note: Best wishes to a good class supporter

A wondrous musician is she, and as wondrous a student. If we clean the keys, will you show us a little?

A. RUSSELL DEAN

Closter, N. J.

Dean is only his name. We often wonder what is happening behind such an innocent, unconcerned visage.

J. ROLAND DEY

Dayton, N. J.

A lad that we are asking kind things for. May his position in life be as comfortable as that of the classroom.

SYNOPSIS

Dan Donovan

DANIEL DONOVAN

Bayonne, N. J.

Theta Psi.

Dan is one of our athletic aces, and can doff his hat to nobody behind that ole bat. A princely chap, and deserving of the world's best.

Tom Drum

THOMAS F. N. DRUM

Williamstown, Pa.

Iota Tau Sigma.

A man whose conflicts in this game have won our respect and admiration. Ambition, pride and results—that's Tom.

Bill Dunn

WILLIAM F. DUNN

Keokuk, Iowa

Iota Tau Sigma.

We're not here to praise "Bill's" pulchritude—others have done that before us. We do, however, want to commend his tenacity of purpose.

K. Porter

KENNARD P. EDWARDS

Southampton, N. Y.

Phi Sigma Gamma.

A great little fellow, this "Pete" chap, and as a live wire basketball manager he has no equal. The old zip! That's "Pete."

"Frank" Everhart

FLORENCE A. EVERHART

Athens, Pa.

Kappa Psi Delta.

"Frank's" ability to "brush up" nasal doilies has started her well on the road to fame—that and a well-deserved rep as chief cook and candy vendor.

SYNOPSIS

DAISY D. FLETCHER

New York City

Daisy's quiet, studious understanding and sympathetic manner has won for her a place in all hearts. Consecrated to the amelioration of an afflicted humanity.

LILLIAN J. FRENCH

New Brunswick, N. J.

Axis Club.

"Billy" has the reputation of being able to vamp anything in sight. She takes her getting-up exercises in the form of a sprint to 8 o'clock classes.

WILLIAM FRIEDMAN

New York City

Lambda Omicron Gamma.

Attention to business and—well, "Bill" is like us all; he has a heart. Keen observation and taciturnity are the two factors assuring his success.

WILLIAM B. FRYE

Steelton, Pa.

A bar of "high-tempered" true steel is our classification of this chap. A mighty fine chap, and known to only a few.

DOROTHY GALBRAITH

Wyncote, Pa.

Kappa Psi Delta.

A girl whose affability, energies and sincerity command the respect of those who know her. Her personality is her asset.

Galbraith

SYNOPSIS

CHARLOTTE D. GANTS

Philadelphia, Pa.

"Dunky" is our feminine athletic representative, and we are certainly proud of her. We hope her life will be a "swimming" success.

ROY V. GERKEN

Iowa

A chap who, by his adaptations, has earned that profound respect and admiration that his fellow-classmates hold for him.

PAUL G. GERMANN

Utica, N. Y.

Iota Tau Sigma.

"Dutch" can well boast the distinction of being the Duke's tutor and traveling companion a la Ford.

SAMUEL GETLEN

Trenton, N. J.

Lambda Omicron Gamma.

Sammy, how do you file so many details into that crusty size 6½? A walking, talking, teasing textbook, this boy.

ALFRED G. GILLISS

Merchantville, N. J.

Here's to "Al," the big little man whose drive as a pep-em-up and a great track manager has won for him a niche in our Hall of Fame.

SYNOPSIS

HARRY E. GILLILAND

New Brunswick, N. J.

Theta Psi.

We have a few silver-toned warblers, and "Hank" is one. Due to "Hank's" efforts, we may have a football team next year. We're all behind you, old peanut!

Bobbie C. MARION GRISWOLD

East Orange, N. J.

Kappa Psi Delta.

"Bobbie Boy" has developed into quite a swimmer, and gives much promise in that sport. We certainly agree that the Profs set a mean pace on assignments.

I. MORTON GROSSMAN

Brooklyn, N. Y.

Lambda Omicron Gamma.

"Abie" is studying with the hope of establishing a non-medical healing art for animals. He is the College Prosecutor and a royal flunker, say the Sophs.

FRANCIS E. GRUBER

Philadelphia, Pa.

A pacific member of the Rear Row Ranch and a hard worker. Some say he's afraid of the Profs, but his knowledge makes that unnecessary.

PAUL H. HATCH

Montpelier, Vt.

Atlas Club.

A man whose physical frankness has caused his many classifications. But here's to "Tim," the man we have all come to know and love!

SYNOPSIS

CHARLES E. HAWKINSON

El Paso, Texas

Iota Tau Sigma.

"Tex" was a member of the Senior Class, but spent a year down on the plains of the Lone Star State, and so has cast his lot with us. He must have quite a memory, for he never takes a note.

HAZEL C. HAYMAN

Philadelphia, Pa.

Axis Club.

A hard worker whose purposeful tenacity has earned our sincere respect.

FRANKLIN L. HAZELTON

Clarion, Pa.

Iota Tau Sigma.

We have labored long and hard with "Tiny," and are asking the world to be kind to him. A man with a dormant potential.

HOWARD P. HENSEL

Steelton, Pa.

"Chick" is the boy who has done so well at the managerial post of the baseball team. A man of push, and well capable of handling the Great Conflict.

GERALDINE JENNINGS

Water Mill, Long Island, N. Y.

Kappa Psi Delta.

"Jerry," though quiet, is a girl of much enthusiasm. Let's not forget the organizer of this, our great ole Class o' '26.

SYNOPSIS

Leason H. Johnson

LEASON H. JOHNSON

Hudson Falls, N. Y.

"Johnny's" unruffled mien has been well classified as exemplary, yet we insist that somebody must worry. "Not I," says "Johnny."

William O. Kingsbury

WILLIAM O. KINGSBURY

Elmhurst, Long Island, N. Y.

Atlas Club.
Piloting a class through a first Year Book and a Junior Prom has been "Bill's" lot this year, and we're darn proud of him. May Fate be as kind to us in our next selection!

JAMES B. W. LANSING

Manasquan, N. J.

"Jim" has been one of our outstanding stick-to-its, and we are expecting big things of him. A man with healthy motives.

Robert R. Lewis

ROBERT R. LEWIS

Philadelphia, Pa.

The class photographic "bug," and a dandy at it, too. "Bob's" a great camper, and has shown many of the class the island of his heart.

JENNIE V. MARMORA

Ardmore, Pa.

Kappa Psi Delta.

Jennie recently deserted the thinning ranks of the celibates. Congrats, Jen! We hope the Sophs appreciate the honor conferred on them.

SYNOPSIS

GEORGE J. MOESCHLIN

Sunbury, Pa.

Atlas Club.

Whenever Paul has something that must be done just right, "Buss" gets the job. As a go-getter and a model student, he has few parallels.

ANGELO NICOSIA

Lynn, Mass.

"Nick" gives the Freshmen a daily example of superior Junior intellect, and is well capable of so doing. He emulates Napoleon by getting his stuff in thorough military fashion.

PAUL G. NORRIS

Lynn, Mass.

A man who has sacrificed all for the honor and glory of his class. The success of this initial Year Book is due entirely to his ceaseless, tireless, conscientious driving.

SYL J. O'BRIEN

Johnstown, Pa.

Hibernian pugnacity is herein exemplified. "Obie" has always fought for what is right and just—for the treasury and for the Year Book. Our obligations to him are many.

THOMAS H. OXLEY

Philadelphia, Pa.

Phi Sigma Gamma.

Tom held up his end in "da" Ambulance Corps, and has been holding it up ever since in the classroom and on the "campus."

GEORGE L. PRICE

Woodbury, N. J.

We hereby dedicate this space to the Monarch of Democracy. George is the most out-of-school cuss in our class. We like him a lot, and want to see more of him in the future.

JOSEPH F. PY

Manayunk, Pa.

No, that's not a dinnerpail Joe carries, but a flock of books to check up the Profs. He's a good student, Joe is. His recitations are the envy of the class.

HENRY A. SAWYER

Limerick, Maine

"Hank" hails from the "Maine" State in the Union—ask him! His chief concerns are the repression of hilarious outbursts, "paying attention" and preparing "before the class" speeches.

ANNA M. SEIDERS

Philadelphia, Pa.

Axis Club.

Annie brings us the much-needed experience of an R. N., and is willing that we should profit thereby. Her Gibraltar stand on stolid ecclesiastical principles have gained for her an enviable esteem.

JEAN L. SHEPERLA

Philadelphia, Pa.

Jean's nursing experience puts her ahead of most of us. Attention to business is her motto—and Lib's.

SYNOPSIS

FULLER SHERMAN

Woodbury, N. J.

Iota Tau Sigma.

"Dudley" is the quiz captain in Freshman Chemistry, and his inherent ability as a referee makes these boys toe the mark.

ROBERT D. SIMPSON

Montclair, N. J.

"Bob" manipulates the musical worries for the manic minority in their minstrel mumbblings. As a crack student and a pre-exam saviour his "rep" is enviable.

URSULA C. SMITH

Kappa Psi Delta.

"Bunny" has won much fame as a child specialist to date. Her electric personality assures her of a generous measure of osteopathic success.

LEONA E. SPICER

Meriden, Conn.

Axis Club.

Leona is one of the few doctors' daughters in the college. Inheritance and a generous amount of sympathetic personality are success's best bets.

Leona E. Spicer

WILLIAM B. STRONG

New York City

Phi Sigma Gamma.

"Bill" is following his brother's lead in the right direction. As a symbol of acquired dignity, the boy is there.

SYNOPSIS

ELIZABETH TOOMEY

Coatesville, Pa.

Kappa Psi Delta.

An example of womanhood to be admired. "Lib" represents the center of hilarity in our class, and has won her way to our conkles by her personality.

LEO C. WAGNER

Philadelphia, Pa.

Iota Tau Sigma.

Leo has ever been an ardent worker in the interests of the school and for his class. His T. R. flashes a handsome set of tusks, believe us!

DONALD WATT

New Rochelle, N. Y.

Theta Psi.

Don came in from the Middle West, a typical, well-dressed Chicagoan. His scholastic ability and professional attitude is noteworthy.

THADDEUS C. WEINERT

Jersey City, N. J.

"Let's live while the living's good," says "Tad." The boy always greets one with the well-known grin, so p'haps he's right.

WILLIAM E. WELLBORN

Ford City, Pa.

"Bill's" due for a bunch of credit. His scholastic conflict has been a vigorous one, and we are proud of his rally.

SYNOPSIS

JAMES K. WEST
Wilmington, N. C.

The folks seldom hear from "Jim." In fact, if it wasn't for an occasional quiz, his voice would be strange. A great boy, and with a real code of honor.

ROBERT M. WHITE
Dover, N. J.

Phi Sigma Gamma.

"The man who found himself," we say as we proudly point to "Bob." His class work is well up and coming strong. Go it, "Whitey," ole cuss!

JOHN A. WHITEHOUSE
Tarentum, Pa.

J. A.'s a local representative for some sort of "hoss feed"—guaranteed to strengthen even the hair follicles. Proof? Look at his upper lip.

EDNA K. WILLIAMS
Philadelphia, Pa.

We have naught but praises for this young lady as she pioneers in this great science. She exhibits great pluck in carrying on.

MAXWELL E. WILSON
Washington, Pa.

"Max" is a great backer of all that is constructive in the class. His voice is rarely heard, but his support can always be presumed as though shouted.

Edna K. Williams

ON SEPTEMBER 11, 1923, 110 neophytes entered the portals of P. C. O. to delve into the intricacies of Osteopathy. Representatives from Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, New York, Delaware, Virginia, Illinois, Canada and Belgium consolidated for one purpose and established the official Class of 1927. The officers selected to pilot the good ship '27 were A. H. Leeds, president; E. D. Tucker, vice-president; Margot Schlicff, secretary, and C. L. Symington, treasurer.

How firmly engraved on our minds is the first Assembly whereby we met Dean Flack and the members of the Faculty. We feel it to be the beginning of the end when Dr. Bellew nonchalantly informed us that there were some 500 muscles, 206 bones and about 10,000 medical terms to be mastered before the semester ended. It wasn't so bad, though, and practically all of us survived.

The Sophs soon levied a list of "advice" and '27 reacted with true sportsmanship. We scrubbed walks, did manual labor on the tennis courts and made ourselves generally useful. In fraternal retaliation, however, we trimmed the Sophs in an impromptu baseball game, and we did it again when the superiority of the class at the national game was requested.

On November 23, 1923, at the Hotel Adelpia, the class initiated what we hoped would be an annual Frosh banquet. At this affair the heretofore unknown officers of the class were introduced.

During the Hospital Drive, '27 redisplayed its merits by an energetic solicitation of donations and by donating $1000 as a class.

The athletic supremacy of the class was again displayed when '27 won the interclass relay championship at the Annual Track Meet.

Then a matrimonial epidemic broke out in P. C. O. The siege raged along and claimed many victims—may they ever be so infected.

The Glee Club and Poverty Dance were the bright lights of the second semester and were assurances to the college that '27 was a real class, with class.

On September 11, after a summer of leisure (for some), labor and brush-selling, the class reassembled and noted the ravages of that old "harness maker," Cupid.

Realizing that the Frosh needed attention, '27 proceeded to show them their place and soundly trounced their team and O'Brien, of '26, in the annual baseball game. Dr. "Full-o'-Pep" D'Eliseu arranged a tug-of-war and it was too easy.

Let us rest now and pledge the Class of '25 to naught but the worthwhile in life.

Freshman Class History

REALIZING that the success, if not the very existence, of our class was largely dependent on its early organization, a meeting was called for that purpose on September 25, 1924. This first class meeting was presided over by Mr. A. H. Leeds, President of the Sophomore Class, who first of all took the opportunity of expressing the attitude of friendship and helpfulness which his class extended to the newcomers. Following Mr. Leeds' welcome address was the election of class officers, and Mr. Florenz Smith was elected president; Mr. Harry Hessdorfer, vice-president; Miss Anna C. Sollenberger, secretary, and Mr. Walter Spill, treasurer. On the following day Mr. Herbert Talmage was chosen to represent the class on the Arone, and Miss Gladys Smiley and Mr. George Frison were elected to represent the Freshman Class on the Student Council.

The next step in the formation of our class government was the adoption of a constitution. A committee of seven, with Mr. George Darrohn as chairman, was appointed by the president to draw up and submit a constitution and necessary by-laws. The committee labored long and conscientiously, and their efforts were rewarded by the acceptance of the class of our present Constitution on October 30. On November 20 Mr. Leonard Smith was appointed sergeant-at-arms, and at the same time Mr. Joseph Hadjelhi was elected class historian.

SYNOPSIS

From the very first, nothing but the most sanguinary hopes were held in the athletic possibilities in the Class of '28. Even before the first class meeting, we met the Sophomore Class in a game of baseball, and some weeks later the two classes met in a tug-of-war at Strawberry Mansion. The time following this last event was given to basketball practice, and on December 6 we played the first game of the season with the Freshmen of the University of Pennsylvania. Four days later saw our team matched against that of the Germantown Academy, resulting in a score of 40-22 in favor of the College of Osteopathy Freshmen. This victory is of special significance, it being the first time in four years that our college has been able to defeat Germantown Academy. We met the Media High School on their own floor on December 18, and our last game was with the Swarthmore Freshmen. If we have not succeeded in defeating all our opponents, it must be remembered that three of our classmates, Messrs. Bradford, Laughton and Sullivan, are playing on the Varsity Team, where they are giving a good account of themselves.

While our social activities have not kept pace with our athletics, there are many whispered rumors as to the pleasant surprises waiting for us this coming semester. On Friday, September 19, the Neuron Society gave the Freshman Class a reception and dance, which was greatly enjoyed. On Saturday, October 4, a goodly number of our class spent the day at Dr. Dufur's. Plans are now on foot to give a ball on the last day of examinations, to which all the students of the college are cordially invited.

Our class membership a present is sixty-nine, nine of whom, we are privileged to say, are of the fair sex. Of this number, Miss Beryl Arbuckle is a student from South Africa, having come to Philadelphia expressly for the purpose of studying osteopathy in this college.

Organizations

Fraternities: Their Uses and Abuses

By O. J. SNYDER, M.S., D.O.

THERE is no nobler human instinct, none of greater influence in shaping the social and spiritual progress of the race, than that which is denoted by the word fraternalism. This may signify the broad relationship of men as members of the human family, of a race or a nation; or the more particular relationship of mutual loyalty, sympathy and helpfulness which binds those who are drawn together by reason of common beliefs, activities or aims. Christianity itself is a form of fraternalism, based upon the inseparable doctrines of the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man. Innumerable secular societies and orders flourish as instrumentalities through which is expressed the human impulse to unite for beneficent purposes.

A notable manifestation of this spirit is seen in the widespread development of the secret fraternities which constitute so prominent a feature of undergraduate life in the higher institutions of learning of the United States and Canada. The system, which is peculiar to the colleges and universities of these two countries, is as old as the American Republic. It was in 1776 that five students at William and Mary, in Virginia, formed a social club designated by the Greek letters, Phi Beta Kappa. Four years later chapters were established at Yale and Harvard, and gradually other institutions took up the idea. For about a century, however, Phi Beta Kappa has been a non-secret and purely honorary organization, membership being an award for attainments in scholarship. Kappa Alpha was the second Greek letter society to be formed; it originated just a hundred years ago. Thereafter the cult spread until there are today more than thirty fraternities for college men and nearly a score of sororities, with many hundreds of chapters and chapter houses.

These apparently insignificant organizations have strongly modified American college life, and have always exerted a wide influence. Students join them at a susceptible age, and regard the obligations of membership with sentiments of profound loyalty. Young men of similar tastes and aspirations, drawn into close association in this manner, form enduring friendships. But so strong is the bond that loyalty to the fraternity not infrequently is rated above loyalty to the college or the real advantage of the individual. The system tends, moreover, to create the outlines of an aristocracy in the college community, a condition which in some cases promotes discipline but in others militates against it. Jealousies and animosities provoked by the arbitrary processes of selection and exclusion have occasionally attracted unfavorable attention. In some states laws have been passed to prohibit college secret societies, and the authorities of not a few institutions have likewise barred them. Each student entering Princeton is required to give a pledge to "have no connection whatever with any secret society, nor to be present at the meetings of any secret society," so long as he remains a member of the university, exception being made for two specified literary organizations.

It is clear, therefore, that the college fraternity is an institution with two aspects. It is based upon a natural human instinct, and in general its aims are legitimate and its influence salutary. Yet, exclusion of the system from some universities and its limitation in others testify to the existence of defects in the theory. Too often there is manifest a tendency to create divisions where there should be unity, to set up group distinctions where the spirit of democratic equality should prevail. However lofty the aims of such secret orders, they frequently become instrumentalities used to promote the influence or advantage of their members, to the detriment of non-members and consequently to the impairment of college discipline and progress.

While any sweeping criticism of the fraternities in the Philadelphia College of Osteopathy would be manifestly unjust, since in many respects they are faithful to the highest aims they profess, it is unfortunately true that in certain instances their influence has been harmful to the student body and obstructive of sound management. The need is for the societies and their members to exemplify more truly the real spirit of fraternalism—not to serve selfish or exclusive purposes, but the larger causes of helpfulness to those who need it and of advancement of the college and the profession.

SYNOPSIS

Kappa Psi Delta

Kappa Psi Delta Sorority, Beta Chapter, was organized at the Philadelphia College of Osteopathy, November 7, 1908. During the years the growth has been steady and sure and today, Beta Chapter is represented by seventy-nine members in the field. Now we strive, as those before us, to measure up to those ideals for our profession, our college, and our lives, for which the organization stands. It is our hope that the future will find us stronger and more useful than ever before.

Atlas Club

In the fall of 1898, in response to the need of a strong Osteopathic fraternal organization, the Psi Omega Fraternity was organized under the leadership of Henry Stanhope Bunting. The atlas bone was chosen its emblem, typifying the upholding of everything intellectual and worthwhile. The permanent organization was completed on December 10, 1898, and due to the choice of the atlas bone as the symbol of the fraternity, its name was changed to the Atlas Club. Styloid Chapter was granted its charter and installed, May 10, 1924, at Atlantic City. Brothers Dr. J. Ivan Dufur, Dr. Chas. J. Muttart, and Dr. D. S. B. Pennock, the appointed trustees, were presented the Styloid Charter by the Grand Council of the Atlas Club.

All chapters have lived up to the original ideals of the founders and today we find the oldest and largest fraternal organization in the Osteopathic world, with 1500 practicing field members and 500 active members. The Atlas Club is proud of its record which is told in the deeds of its field members, and the Styloid Chapter is proud of its record as told in the activities of its active members.

Lambda Omicron Fraternity

The Lambda Omicron Gamma Fraternity, founded on the gibraltic precepts and ideals of universal benevolence, had its inception in the Philadelphia College of Osteopathy on November 10, 1924.

After a series of concentrated efforts, mottled with the vicissitudes and adversities so consistently presented to the pioneer, institutional recognition was granted. This was later followed by an endorsement from the sanctuary of interfraternal acknowledgment and local establishment was completed.

SYNOPSIS

Sigma Alpha Omicron Fraternity

ALPHA CHAPTER

DURING the early part of the present year the Sigma Alpha Omicron Fraternity was organized as a scholastic honorary society. An organization of this character has for several years been considered by the students of the Philadelphia College, but it was not until December, 1924, that definite favorable action was taken by the dean and the Faculty. A Faculty committee was appointed for the purpose of organizing the fraternity, outlining requirements for membership and drawing up a suitable constitution.

Although this fraternity cannot be justly called a national organization, it is the plan to extend its membership to the other recognized colleges of Osteopathy and enroll as many of the said colleges as possible on its chapter roll in the very near future.

As a national body, with chapters in every college, we feel that the prospect of advancing the standards of scholarship in the various schools is very bright. Furthermore, it is our idea that the efficiency of each individual graduate will be increased. Again, it is our plan to aid the American Osteopathic Association in its campaign for better colleges and better students. On the whole, therefore, the object of this society will be the advancement of the scientific art of Osteopathy.

MEMBERSHIP

There is no discrimination so far as sex, color, creed, age and nationality are concerned in the selection of members, consequently all students and graduates of recognized colleges of Osteopathy who meet the requirements are eligible for membership.

Included in the roll are five classes of members, namely, "Student Members," divided into "Class A" and "Class B;" "Faculty Members," "Alumni Members" and "Professional Field Members."

For "Student Membership" the requirements for eligibility and nomination are based primarily upon the grades or averages in every subject taught, in every clinic conducted and in every laboratory period held. The grade or average maintained during the specified time must be 90 per cent., or its equivalent, in class, clinic and laboratory.

A student to be eligible for membership must not have been inexcusably absent from more than 10 per cent. of all classes, clinics and laboratory periods conducted during the specified time. Excusable absences or cuts are only those which have been permitted by the Dean of the College.

The general conduct, morals, appearance and attitude of the candidates are carefully considered by the Faculty committee in the selection of members. This includes not only candidates' relations in the College, but also in the hospital and clinic.

Practical ability, when required by the committee, is demonstrated in whatever way the committee sees fit. Also an internship of at least four weeks in a recognized hospital must be completed in a satisfactory manner. The Chief of Staff, Hospital Committee or Professional Superintendent furnishes the record of each candidate for such internship.

Students from other recognized colleges of Osteopathy are eligible for membership in this organization upon presentation of satisfactory grades and attendance records, and upon completion of at least eight consecutive months of attendance at the Philadelphia College of Osteopathy.

"Class A" members are known as "elected members," and include those students who have met all the requirements of the organization for three college years and a half.

SYNOPSIS

"Class B" members are called "nominated members," and are those students who have been selected after satisfying all the specified requirements for three college years. These members can be dropped from the chapter's roll at any time that they do not maintain the proper standards as outlined, at the discretion of the members in good standing and the Faculty committee.

For "Faculty Membership" the requirements for election are somewhat elastic. All or a part of the faculty of P. C. O., may be elected at the discretion and by a vote of the "Student Members," with the approval of the committee of the Faculty.

The "Alumni Membership" of this fraternity consists of those physicians who have been "Class A" members in good standing at the time of their graduation from a recognized college of Osteopathy.

The "Professional Field Membership" is composed of physicians who have been elected because of unusual ability or accomplishment in the practice of Osteopathy after graduation from a recognized college of Osteopathy.

ELECTION

A candidate is elected to this fraternity entirely at the recommendation of the "Student Members" and upon the approval of the committee of the Faculty, after the record of his or her work and character is compared with the requirements, as outlined above.

There are no applications, the membership being entirely determined and selected by the proper authorities.

PURPOSE

The main purpose of this society is to advance Osteopathy and improve the knowledge of each student and practitioner of that science. In order to do that we plan to hold open meetings periodically and supply leaders in the various branches as speakers and demonstrators. We also plan to aid in the acquisition of a better College library. Eventually, too, we will try to establish more and better post graduate courses in conjunction with the various osteopathic societies and colleges. The maintenance of modern equipment will be another aim of the organization. Everything that will improve the standards of the students and profession, therefore, will receive the support of this fraternity.

REWARDS

The reward for merit is a suitably engraved "Certificate of Membership," accompanied by a Gold Key, given to all members except those in "Class B" group. We hope that these symbols of honor will in a short time assume their proper meaning to the osteopathic profession in general.

Further, the list of members will be submitted to the Board of Directors, be posted upon the College bulletin boards, be printed in the College publications and announced at Commencement exercises.

At present it is our plan to give the key and certificate publicly, at either the Class Day or Commencement exercises.

OFFICERS

At the time of writing there are no officers of this fraternity, except possibly the committee of the Faculty, consisting of Dr. Emanuel Jacobson, Dr. Francis J. Smith and Dr. Ralph L. Fischer, who have drafted all the data contained herein, under the direction of Dean Edgar O. Holden. However, when the organization is completed there will be a group of student officers elected by the "Student Members" for the conduction of regular meetings and the direction of the fraternity work.

RALPH L. FISCHER,

The Neurone Society

The student body in the Philadelphia College of Osteopathy is organized under the head of the Neurone Society. This society was founded on February 24, 1902, having as its object the stimulation of scientific research and promotion of good fellowship.

In its twenty-three years of college service, the Neurone Society has carried with its numerous endeavors the high purpose of many leaders—notably conspicuous, the work of our Dean, Dr. Edgar O. Holden, who during his presidency as a student, established the Axone as our college quarterly.

Each year brings new expression to the voice of this society—and as we hear in echoes of the past, promises for gymnasiums, libraries, dormitories, and science halls of the future—so, too, the Neurone Lunch Room is this year's contribution to the Almighty Present!

"Time is too slow for those who wait"—this society's programme for the year 1924-1925 more definitely bespeaks its influence in the college life of each and every student; no society in the Philadelphia College of Osteopathy allows more opportunity for the social advancement and educational progress of its members!

Resume of the Neurone Activities 1924-1925

September 19—A Freshman Dance always presages new faces, features, forms and stunts! And this was no exception! E. W. Wiley shall long be remembered for his galloping consumption of eighteen bricks of ice cream—and we are not positive whether or not he was definitely responsible for losing a sweet, young frosh in the suburbs of West Philly—but we have our suspicions!

September 25—Long has P. C. O. felt the abdominal need of a good constitutional support—and through the aggressiveness of M. Anderson, '27; M. Jackson, '27; G. Clarkson, '27, and M. Perkins, '27, the Neurone Lunch was fitfully born in the year of our Lord One, Nine, Two, Four! Its service to hundreds daily merits appreciative mention!

October 4—Neurone-Dufur Day was officially recognized and approved this year by the student body. Two chartered busses conveyed hundreds of students to the beautiful country estate of Dr. J. Ivan Dufur whose hospitality, en famille, is ever a permanent tribute to his success.

The Faculty Senior baseball game was conducive to many stiff situations—followed the next day by many "stiffer" realities—but lame joints were mild contrasted with the "lame orchard" where parked the hungering students in their first, few, faltering steps!

Supper served on the lawn proved the Osteopath's capacity for many things—conservatively—hot dogs and doughnuts!

An evening completed by Interclass music and levity brought to close a wonderfully harmonious day—and the Wissahickon shall long echo the singing voices which heralded glad tidings that night!

October 12—Jenab-i-Fadil, Professor of Psychology in the King's Medical College at Terhian, presented Bahaianism to a variedly impressed student body!

October 30—Who shall ever forget the famous Kiddy Kar Polo staged on Hallowe'en eve by Messrs. Gerlach, Bowman, Cossaboom and Powell in The Senior Class, and Messrs. Gillis, Gillian, Gedney and Oxley in the Junior Class, with Ernie Johnson, '25, referee?

Complete exhaustion manifested itself, and the resulting inertia registered as late as midyears! "He who laughs last laughs best"—years shall be necessary to appreciate this last laugh, 'cause months have elapsed and students are still chuckling at these gayly naked gladiators who wrecked not only Dr. Dufur's croquet mallets and the Neurone Society's Kiddy Kars, but the seriousness of many a reflected moment!

Gerlach as the modern Raffleer in his final auction succumbed speechless but triumphant!

SYNOPSIS

The Frosh Apache Dance, and the Staphylococci Trio, representing Clarkson, Anderson and Winant, contributed the last touch to a perfectly riotous evening!

November 19—Mabel C. Jackson, hostess, presided at the first afternoon Neurone Tea—may it never be said of Mabel that she was cognizant of Lib Toomey's collusion with Dr. Newman—Dr. Soden being the victim of irreverent spirits!

November 21—The Miles Memorial Clock was placed in the Assembly Room as an everlasting tribute to a student who gave of his time and life—a student in the ranks of the Philadelphia College of Osteopathy.

December 19—The first Christmas Neurone Musical was a great success, and success is always measured in terms of support and co-operation. Christmas carols were never more beautifully sung! Dr. Dufur's pertinent personal address savored of much that filled the hearts of every student. It struck a note which found harmonious expression in the many musical numbers of that festive programme, glorifying: S. Kanev, '25; T. Maginnis, '25; J. Lindsay, '25; A. Leeds, '27; M. Hough, '27; M. Perkins, '27; M. Mentzer, '27, and A. Hestorfer, '28. We want more Christmas Musicales, more wonderful music, more beautiful spirit of fellowship!

December 20—Good Will baskets were delivered to twenty-five little children packed with Christmas food and toys. This precedent which we established we hope shall be carried on in years to come—for such generosity bring more than gratitude to the hearts of students when they sense the thanks of these poor little urchins!

STUDENT life at P. C. O. is periodically recorded and enlivened by the Axone, which is the paper published quarterly by the student body. At the time of its inception, five years ago, it appeared as a small leaflet published under Neuron régime. Since that time it has evolved to a sizable college magazine, demanding the exclusive extracurricular indulgence of an individual staff.

Literary portrayal of intracollegiate activities as well as succinct depictions of available Alumni happenings constitute a portion of its comprising material. Space is also devoted to the original contributions of the student and occasionally of the faculty and profession with a condimental dash of humor incorporated in a manner well deserving of literary plaudits.

Junior Prom

THE evening of April 24, 1925—the caption of the red-letter page in conscientiously maintained diaries—the event upon which many soothing reminiscences are linged—the gala night of Junior Jollity!

Met in the North Gardens of the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel several hundred guests swayed in synchronism and revelled under the influence of the gloom-dispelling jazz symphony of Sid Coleman's musical acrobats.

The Junior Prom Committee labored sincerely to make that evening one to be long cherished in the memory department of our cerebrums. Did they succeed?—Not so much noise about it!!

SYNOPSIS

"Nothing But the Truth"

COMING as an innovation in intracollegiate endeavors, the Soph Play, presented at the Play and Players Theatre, may well be classified as an ascending step and a laudable increment to the realm of extracurricular activities.

Under able direction, the capable cast presented to an appreciative audience, a three-act comedy dealing with the advantages and embarrassments of a strict adherence to the truth. Dancing to the tantalizing offerings of Hurlubise's "East Coast Collegians" followed the performance and concluded an excellent evening.

It is "Nothing But the Truth" that the play was a success and was so effected by earnest, unselfish work on the part of the cast and Mrs. J. Ivan Dufur, Miss Erla M. Stoudmour, Floyd B. Whitebread, Frank A. Gants, Henry Herbst, M. J. Williams, E. De Ver Tucker, and R. N. Eberly.

The Junior New York State Osteopathic Society

FOR some years, a need was felt in the student body, and especially among those present from New York State, for an organization that would bind those individuals into a working, harmonious unit. To satisfy this need, the Junior New York State Osteopathic Society was established.

Through the energies of Miss R. H. Winant as temporary chairman, organization was completed in the spring of 1924. During that year regular quiz classes were held which did much to prepare the members for the examinations of the New York State Medical Board.

After an apparent interval of inactivity during the fall of the present term, the society suddenly began to show new signs of life. Well-known speakers were selected to address the society, making activities more interesting and accentuating those purposes which prompted the formation of the society.

It is universally believed that this bond of union is doing much to encourage the members in their present work and promises fair to further scientific Osteopathy in the State of New York.

"Yellow Cab - Taxi?"

Locust 3200

Yellow Cab Club

A NEW diversion, incidentally a source of funds for the aspiring "self-mader," has, during the past year, driven golf, bridge, and studies completely off the week-end calendars of some twenty of the best known men in the college. What is this new activity that so wholly occupies the attention of some of our best students? Cross-word puzzles? No! Mah Jong? No!! Bootlegging? No!!! It's taxi-driving.

Remember one Saturday or Sunday this spring, when a neatly uniformed young chap rescued you from that unexpected storm or guaranteed to get you to the station in "nothing flat" in his little yellow bus? Did you look at him very closely? For in other guise this same obsequious fellow who seemed hardly more than a uniform and driving ability put together, may in the whitest of clothes, and with the cleanest hands, be assisting the Chief Surgeon of the Osteopathic Hospital explore the "innards" of some poor, unfortunate patient.

Through the courtesy and co-operation of the Yellow Cab Company of Philadelphia, which is operating a special "Student Shift," many of the scions of the profession are driving taxis on the gala week-ends. Then it is that the twenty special drivers from Osteopathy "go on" and, disguising themselves in warm and neat overcoats and caps, go abroad in search of adventure—and fares.

Faces are seen under the black caps at the cab stands week-ends which may be recognized five other days a week, not only about the college, but at some of the most select affairs given by society. Sometimes the incognito is really complete, and the secret of how Johnny manages never to overdraw his allowance any more is zealously guarded from a proud family. Others spend their week-ends in profitable labor with the sanction and blessings of their parents.

He's a worker, the taxi-driver, and he hasn't much time for social diversions. The enforced loneliness of the driver's life is more than compensated for by his adventures. Around the garage, a thousand bits daily enlighten the toil.

"Took a bunch of fellows and girls I'd known all my life from a dance the other night—stood right under the arc light and got bawled out because the company only sent one cab instead of two, and not one of 'em knew me. 'Sorry sir,' I said humbly, 'I'll have to do, I guess!'"

"It was raining and I'd just shipped a fare at the Academy of Music. Here was an old duke with white whiskers standing in a puddle and waving his umbrella. Blamed if he didn't try to climb right in. 'Sorry, sir,' I said gently, 'This cab's occupied' and off I drove leaving him standing in his puddle. It was my uncle, and I trembled at dinner for fear he'd recognized me, but not a chance."

ATHLETICS

Athletics in a Co-educational College

MILTON F. D'ELISCUE
B. Sc., D. P. E.

The growth of athletics has become so evident in our modern colleges that an institution without a definite recreational programme is completely lost in the realm of educational circles today. The usual slogan, "Sports for All," has become such an international item of discussion that what was once considered play is now taken as a serious asset to the general building up of the boy and girl, man and woman.

Schools and institutions that have looked at recreation and physical development as a waste of time to fill a vacant period, have changed their reaction to one of physical progress and continued development for the better man and woman.

The Philadelphia College of Osteopathy in its short period of time has made such advanced progress in the athletic world that it has become an institution of wide reputation because of its champions and championships. This is not due to the fact that the professional school has so much time to devote to its activity, but no work can be made effective without a change of environment and this cannot be better accomplished than by a diversion in the form of sports, which has found such a prominent place in the life of the student today.

It is hoped that a future of strong men and women will make the profession more able to conduct its activity in the same interest and in better health.

Fifth Annual Track Meet

GILLISS

Every year the Philadelphia College of Osteopathy presents to the sporting public one of the biggest events of the winter athletic season in the form of a gigantic indoor track meet. This year's was number five, and one which shall live long in the annals of intercollegiate sports. It was a decided success, and afforded local fandom an opportunity which may never be duplicated. The bulk of credit can go to none others than the diminutive "Doc" D'Eliscu, supervisor of athletics in the Philadelphia College of Osteopathy, and the energetic "Al" Gilliss, manager of track, for securing the track notables that participated and for the manner in which the meet was handled and the spectators accommodated.

The big feature of the evening was the running of Paavo Nurmi, recent Olympic phenomenon, and at present the most discussed athlete in the world. Nurmi ran in a feature two-mile grind, and so outclassed his opponents that they appeared to be walking.

SYNOPSIS

Although Nurmi did not fracture the two-mile record, he did add another record to the twenty-seven now credited to him. In the mile and three-quarters distance he was clocked at $8.17\frac{2}{3}$, which clipped the old record of $8.18\frac{4}{5}$ formerly held by W. D. Day for thirty-five years. Nurmi traveled the two-mile course with apparent ease, and lapped every man in the event with him. After the race his great stamina was displayed when he trotted to the ropes and leaped the four-foot barrier as though the feat just performed was but a mere workout for him.

Another number which seemed even to surpass that of Nurmi's was Willie Ritola, the Americanized countryman of Nurmi. This knight of the cinder path ran three and a quarter miles, and, although he started at a pace that simulated a 220-yard sprint, he increased his speed at every lap; and on the home stretch uncorked a sprint that made him look like a 50-yard entry. So well did he run that he lapped his nearest rival four times, and at the end of the race it was announced, amidst a great outburst of applause, that he had broken the world's record for that distance, making it in 15.38, and thereby clipping $31\frac{3}{5}$ off the old record.

Harold "Boots" Lever, former intercollegiate dash champion, won the 50-yard event, defeating, among others, George Hill, present college sprint title holder of the University of Pennsylvania.

The Phi Sigma Gamma team, composed of Edwards, Gerlach, Fitzwater and Jensen, won the interfraternity relay for the fifth consecutive year. The Iota Tau Sigma fraternity ran second, and the Atlas Club won a close third place. The other events of the evening were as follows:

Review of the Basketball Season

A TRIP to Collegeville and a clash with Ursinus opened the season on December 11. This was a fast game for an opener and was not decided until the last few minutes of play when the boys put over the winning basket for a 30-29 victory. On December 17, at Conwell Hall the team lost a scrappy game to Temple University, 31-21.

The following night the team pulled another thriller and won the Haverford game in the last few minutes of play. The score was 28-27. On January 7, following the holidays, the team repeated with another sensational wind-up and beat Drexel, 30-29.

The winning streak was broken, however, by Swarthmore on January 9, when the hosts pinned a 33-19 decision on us. On January 17 the Maroon and Grays took a journey to Chesterton, Md., but the Washington College managed to put across a 28-17 victory.

Following this game and after a long lay-off for the mid-year gruelling, Muhlenburg slapped defeat on the old record to the tune of 37-21. The boys started well and were in the lead at the end of the half-way mark, but the effects of long hours over the ole books were in evidence and Muhlenberg carried away a hotly contested and well-earned victory. On February 25, Juniata snared a 53-19 wreath. Moravian, however, was not shown any mercy and the D. O.'s led them a merry battle before finally sinking their hopes with a 40-22 shot.

The team's prospectus for the coming season is unusually bright, as the only man who will be lost by graduation is Captain Gerlach. So, with practically the entire Varsity remaining, P. C. O. should be well represented.

Review of the Girls Basketball Season

FOR the first game, the girls journeyed to Collegeville with the Varsity and matched their wares against those of the fair co-eds of Ursinus. Scrimmage was fast and cleverly conducted, but victory smiled Ursinusward with a 42-10 grin. On February 7, the girls again accompanied the Varsity to Drexel and again displayed a choice form of "pep," but once more the opponents took the long end of a 38-18 score. On January 13, the team opposed the fast Philadelphia Normal sextet, but the teachers were well versed in basketry and revealed a winning brand of game. The result was 22-14.

On February 26, the University of Pennsylvania co-eds were met and a closely contested conflict netted a reverse score of 22-15 to our battling six. Much action and a thriller of a game are to be expected in the return with the Philadelphia Normal team, which is to be played in the near future.

The team shows the need of a couple of far-reaching protectors in the back field and a step-ladder pivoter. Much credit must be given our young ladies for their hard playing and genuine demonstration of P. C. O. ginger.

REVIEW OF THE SEASON

THE FROSH TEAM opened their season with a real opponent in the Freshman five of the University of Pennsylvania, at Weightman Hall, on December 6. The boys fought hard, but could not break through an early lead, and the opener went to Penn, 32-18. In the next game, on December 10, the Frosh showed Germantown Academy a snow storm scene, and buried them beneath a 40-22 score. On December 18 the embryos failed to have the same success, and bowed to Media High, 30-19. The boys played under difficulties, the court being a slippery dance floor, and Weed chains were more in order than suction shoes. Swarthmore Frosh tacked another defeat on the boys on January 9, following the holiday layoff. The next game followed mid-years, and who could give their best after such a tiring siege? The fast West Philadelphia High team took a 35-24 tilt. After this the boys journeyed to Phoenixville on January 23, but returned with the short end of a 29-19 score. February 26 also issued a reverse for the battling Frosh, when West Catholic High turned them back to the inglorious score of 53-22.

In the Frosh team lies the future hopes for the Varsity squad, and indications do not warrant fearful concern for P. C. O.

REVIEW OF THE SEASON

TWO years ago the organization of a Women's Swimming Team introduced a new sport into the athletic realm of the Philadelphia College of Osteopathy. Its inception, present development and success is largely a result of the enthusiastic interest and commendable energies of present Captain Charlotte D. Gants.

With the organization of the team an annual Women's Intercollegiate Championship Meet was inaugurated, and has served well its purpose in giving local impetus to this true sport. The initial presentation of this event resulted in a win for the University of Pennsylvania mermaids, with our fair swimmers traveling in a close second berth. That local interest was attracted and focused is acknowledged. The second Women's Intercollegiate Championship found Temple University and Drexel swimmers filing their respective entries. The meet was held on January 22, and the University of Pennsylvania mermaids again showed their fins to a hotly pursuing school of rivals.

A meet was held with Darlington Seminary on November 4, at West Chester. The P. C. O. amphibians captured all but two of the firsts, but were defeated because of their number, for Darlington's entries outnumbered those of P. C. O. two to one, and seconds and thirds netted a 38-29 victory to our worthy opponents.

An event with the University of Pennsylvania is to be held in the early spring, and comparative figures predict a victory for our voyagers. A eulogy to the entire squad is in order, for they, as a team with but a year's precedent, have certainly shown a rare form of success.

Review of the Tennis Season

THE 1924 tennis season at P. C. O. can certainly be considered a successful one. When noting the type of colleges played, the team deserves, for its showing a great deal of credit. P. C. O. is fortunate in having on its team a man who is rated among the ten best tennis players in this country. Carl Fischer, in 1923, under the colors of P. C. O., annexed the much-coveted Inter-collegiate Tennis Championship. An abundance of credit goes to him as captain and star of the team.

Among the results of the season was a tied match with Haverford and another with Lehigh. In the tilt with Ursinus, the team turned in a laudable 5-1 victory. Matches with the other teams, though not victories, were hotly contested and indicate that the boys were not easily defeated. Games with Princeton, Navy and Swarthmore all resulted in victories for the opponents but to the royally-battled tune of 4-2.

The prospectus for the coming season is bright. Under the guidance of "Johnny" Allen, the entire squad is back to respond to the first call for candidates, and a promising Frosh delegation is certain to offer much for material. The team, however, must work hard with a schedule calling for so formidable an opponent array as the University of Pennsylvania, Swarthmore, Lehigh, Haverford, and Pennsylvania.

THE season's call for candidates was answered by the few remaining Varsity men and a goodly number of new recruits. Among the former were Geo. Gerlach, of "Iron Arm" fame; "Eddie" Gibbs, who spears the apple with either hand, out in the meadow; "Rabbit" Shaw, the little man on the hot corner; Captain "Dan" Donovan, who doesn't know the definition of a "passed ball"; "Don" Amidon, who cavorts between third and second; his playmate of the second sack, McHenry, and "Buss" Moeschlin, who roams the remote fields with friend "Eddie."

On April 7, the team played a practice game with Temple Dental College and beat the "Dents," 3-2.

The season was formally opened April 8, when the team hied itself to Collegeville and lost a hard-fought game with Ursinus with a 1-0 score. Four days later the team lost to Drexel, 11-2. On April 23, in another rigid battle, the boys were topped by Textile, 8-7. Again on April 26 the team went down in glorious defeat at Myerstown against Albright College. In the game with Haverford on May 7, the boys looked unusually good and returned home with a 7-2 victory. A reverse was suffered two days later at the hands of Pennsylvania Military College to the tune of 7-1. The last game of the season was on May 17, and Schuylkill College was on the long end of a 14-7 score.

The outlook for next season is more than bright with not a man to be lost by graduation and the team to be generated by "Eddie" Gibbs.

PURPOSE OF ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

TO FOSTER and further College activities, to improve the educational requirements for entrance and to elevate scholastic standing; to add to the equipment for research laboratories in Osteopathy; to bring the College and students in closer co-operation; to develop the interest of our undergraduates, former students, and Alumni, in the affairs of the Philadelphia College of Osteopathy.

CAMPAIGNS

In connection with the financial work of the Alumni a drive was started for funds to endow the College. Numerous methods were employed. Finally a plan by means of which each alumnus should contribute several shares of paid up Building and Loan Association stock was tried and found to be quite successful. The campaign of 1916 raised $60,000, the campaign of 1919 netted $102,000, and that of 1924 contributed approximately $70,000 to the general fund of the College and Osteopathic Hospital. At present the finances of the College are easily sufficient to carry on the progressive work of College activities and further any new project in view.

COLLEGE LIBRARY

A new library was sorely needed by the increasing student body. An appeal was addressed to the Alumni for books. Immediate response was met with. Books were sent from Alumni members from many members of the eastern states. The returns were truly encouraging and amazing. The library was started with a gusto and threatens to grow into immense proportions.

The personnel of the library committee is as follows:

Dr. Peter H. Brearley, Dr. Mary Patton Hiner, Dr. James McGuigan, Secretary of Alumni Association.

Alumni and Commencement Banquet

On the evening of June 5, 1924, our annual banquet was held at a prominent hotel. About three hundred faithful alumni representing graduates of every class since 1901. It was a memorable occasion, because our illustrious Dean, Dr. Arthur M. Flack, was to retire from the Deanship of the College.

We, who had known him so long, felt deep sorrow at his severance of College activities. He had acted as a father and guide to the undergraduates. To the practising physicians he was a brother, ever helpful and co-operative in any enterprise he engaged, and thoroughly interested and interesting in any project that meant the uplifting of Osteopathy. The debt we owe Dr. Flack, teacher, dean, and executive head, leader in Osteopathy, we shall not be able to repay.

The Alumni commended the appointment of Dr. Edgar O. Holden as our new dean. The Association is ready to encourage any new project he wishes fostered or to aid him to secure new equipment for the College.

IN 1903, a small number of osteopathic physicians gathered in the office of Dr. J. Ivan Dufur, Fifteenth and Walnut Streets, and choosing Dr. Charles J. Muttart as their president, planted the seed of an organization which, in after years, was to blossom forth and be the medium through which great legislative battles have been won, the high standard of the profession upheld, the closer bond between the County and State established, clinics operated, a recognized College of Osteopathy maintained, an Osteopathic Hospital instituted and supported, and thousands of dollars raised to defray legislative expenses and purchase, equip and sustain suitable properties for an Osteopathic College and Hospital. This organization is known today as The Philadelphia County Osteopathic Society.

On November 5, 1907, the osteopathic physicians of Philadelphia met in the College Building, Thirty-third and Arch Streets, for the purpose of reorganizing the society. A new Constitution and By-laws were drawn up and adopted. The first meeting of the reorganized society was held December 3, 1907, with Dr. C. W. McCurdy as president, and fifty-three members enrolled. Dr. McCurdy was succeeded in office by Dr. W. L. Beitel, 1908-10; Dr. A. M. Flack, 1910-11; Dr. W. S. Nicholl, 1911-13; Dr. S. P. Ross, 1913-15; Dr. C. D. B. Balbirnie, 1915-16; Dr. Jane Scott, 1916-17; Dr. E. H. Fritsche, 1917-18; Dr. C. J. Muttart, 1918-21; Dr. C. P. Snyder, 1921-22; Dr. E. G. Drew, 1922-23; Dr. W. J. Furey, 1923-25. Nine monthly meetings are held during the year and the present records show a membership of ninety-three, 95 per cent. of whom are in good standing.

Thus in reviewing the great achievements made possible through the unselfish service, indomitable courage and unlimited faith of those whose loyalty to a great cause has given us our present status as osteopathic physicians, and among these the name of Dr. O. J. Snyder stands out prominently, we, who today reap the rewards of work well done (and what Osteopath in the County and State does not) should recognize and fulfill the duty we owe ourselves and our associates by supporting and strengthening an organization whose object and purposes, as set forth in the Constitution, are to promote, protect and subserve the best interests of its members and the science of Osteopathy in the City and vicinity.

THE SPELL OF THE COLLEGE

(Apologies to Robert W. Service)

*I wanted the title, and sought it.
I studied and crammed like a slave.
Was it a quiz or exam—I fought it;
I hurled my youth into a grave.
I wanted the title, and got it—
Came out with a D.O. last fall—
Yet, somehow, life's not what I thought it,
And somehow the title isn't all.*

*No. There's a college. (Have you found it?)
It's the queerest place that I know,
From the big factories and smoke that surround it
To the din and the rattle of trolleys below.
Some say man was tired when he made it;
Some say it's a fine place to shun.
Maybe. But there's some as would trade it
For no school on earth—and I'm one.*

*You come to get knowledge (damna good reason);
You feel like an exile at first.
And then you hate it like hell for a season,
And you know it is worse than the worst.
Then it grips you like some kind of sinning,
And twists you from foe to a friend.
It seems it's been since the beginning;
It seems it will be to the end.*

*I wanted the title, and sought it;
And missed all the dances and games, like a fool.
Was it textbook or notes—I bought it,
And passed up all social activities of school.
I wanted the title, and got it—
Came out with a D.O. last fall—
Yet, somehow, life's not what I thought it,
And somehow the title isn't all.*

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT OF THE CLASS OF 1925 OF THE PHILADELPHIA COLLEGE OF OSTEOPATHY

IN THE name of bones, so be it.

Be it remembered that the Class of 1925 of the Philadelphia College of Osteopathy, having stood the test of mind, memory and understanding and being sound to the core and then some, and intending to dispose of all the disposable properties, real and personal (especially personal) of the Class does make, publish, and declare the following to be the Class last will and testament:

Item. All that is real with the exception of one portion of such property hereinafter described--the Senior room with its sound-proof windows, the merry-go-rounds, the reversible chairs, the electric wall plug, the skeletons, the blackboard with its especially designed chalk rack, the improvised couches and the smoking room -- we give and bequeath to the Class of 1926.

Item. The ambulatory, otherwise known as the platform, and being the exception noted in the foregoing paragraph, we recognize as the peculiar property of the instructors and we give and bequeath to them all the space some of us occupied with our various equipment, both real and personal.

Item. All that intangible something spoken of as Class Spirit we give and bequeath to the Alumni.

Item. The broken rules so assiduously maintained in the broken state we give and bequeath to the Class of 1927.

Item. We give and bequeath Robert Stollery's diagnostic laboratory to McClelland Bashline.

Item. We give and bequeath personal assets as listed here following:

John Allen's Jersey mosquito hum to J. Alfred Whitehouse.

Edwin Anderson's title to the sobriquet of Beau Brummel to Thomas Drum.

"Ted" Berber's moustache to "Ted" Weinert.

Howard Bowman's affinity for nurses to Robert White.

DeWitt Brake's ready response to "Syl." O'Brien.

Louisa Brown's timidity to Frances Everhart.

Chas. Cattaneo's reticence to Paul Hatch.

Harold Colburn's sales agency to Alex Bothwell.

Adam Cole's sneeze to the president of the Class of 1926 to be disposed of at his discretion.

"Cossie" Cossaboom's Bundle of His with a well-worn stethoscope and a polygraph to Kenneth Edwards.

SYNOPSIS

Ellen Crosley's four-foot niche to Lillian French.
 Louise Crosswell's blush to Florence Colton.
 James Ent's hilarity to Edwin Cressman.

and Jonathan to Rowland Dey and Robert White.
Sol Yoder's brushes to Ellis Metford.
Lloyd Reid's Pullman section to Joseph Py.

We nominate, constitute and appoint the president of the Class of 1926 as executor of this, our last will and testament.
In witness whereof, we, the testators, have to this, our last will and testament, caused to have set the hand of our representative and our seal, this 12th day of January, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-five.

Signed in the presence of a host of witnesses.
I take all the blame. (Signed) J. W. Lindsay.

In any first-class osteopathic college a student is taught to be:

A blacksmith
A beekeeper
A bootlegger
A good fellow
A detective and
A scrapper

Because they tell him:

All about wheals.
A lot about hives.
How to deliver a case.
To treat a patient.
How to trace an impulse.
And to fight disease.

"Obie" is getting quite bald of late, and says he's thinking of swapping his comb for a fly swatter.

About the time a man gets to thinking he's a big gun, somebody fires him.

SYNOPSIS

Wilbr-r-r was inveigled into posing for this picture by the La Ropa shown "in situ." Bald Bill is seen corroborating his belief that among other things, the boy's heart is displaced and "Cat" is looking for four leaf clovers.

DO YOU REMEMBER?

"Did the bell ring?"

"Nobody knows, but I'll tell you."

"The question is——" "The answer is——"

"The absorbing power of the skin is nil."

"Now, take the electric current for example. It will run a vacuum cleaner, furnish light or sufficient to cook with."

"Dees ees a steef queez. No chee-ting, huh?"

"Stimulus—Tendency—Reaction."

Women and cigarettes are similar, in that—

Both are hard on athletes.

Some you would walk a mile for.

Still others—what a difference a few cents will make!

Some bite your tongue.

Once you get the habit, it's hard to break.

They are no fun unless had alone.

Some are straight Virginian.

And others are blended.

Some are perfumed.

Their popularity must be deserved.

Some folks broaden as they age; others merely grow fat.

SYNOPSIS

This is a picture of Bob heading for Frosh Hall to dissect the piano. In his left hand is a wrench for tuning purposes and in the fellow of the opposite side, is a fist-full of broken felt hammers.

Why she ran into our clinic, no one knows. Maybe some one told her she could get a doctor there. Anyway, she was all excited and "worked up."

"Oh, doctor, please tell me what is wrong with my chickens! They went to roost apparently well. This morning I found six on the floor, stiff, combs white and their feet in the air. Oh, what can it be?"

"Madam" (it was the deep, sonorous voice of a Junior), "your chickens are dead!"

OVERHEARD IN OUR CLINIC

"Rastus, wat chu all doin' heah?"

"I'se sick. My veins is all too close."

"Wat chu mean, yo' veins is too close?"

"De doctah jes tol' me I'se got vera close veins."

"You bringing this child in to be examined?"

"Yes, sir."

"What's his name?"

"Opium."

"Opium? Why did you call him opium?"

"Because he came from a wild poppy."

"There goes a man who can't bear children."

You can't clean up this world with soft soap—it requires grit.

SYNOPSIS

The following incident will serve to reveal the extent to which the power of observation has developed in our midst. A man limped into the clinic. His face wore a most agonizing expression. It plainly bespoke excruciating pain. His clothes were soiled and torn. He was unable to move his right arm. His face was scratched and bleeding. Slowly, painfully, he struggled up to a white-coated, bespectacled interne.

"Doctor," he breathed, "I'm hurt."

The phetal physician carefully sized him up. "Why, man, you have been in an accident!"

Four notables "shot" on the "campus." Excuse "Grube's" apparent caution but he nearly lost his watch down town one day, while gaping up at City Hall and he isn't taking any more chances.

One of our Frosh strayed into the clinic one day when it was crowded to capacity, as usual.

"Say, there's some crowd here," he ventured.

"Yes," answered one of the "doctors." "How many people do you suppose are here?"

"One hundred and fifty-four," he returned.

"Righto! How did you guess it?"

"Simple," responded the Freshman. "I just counted the number of feet and divided by two."

Mike—"Have a cigar, G. O.?"

G. O.—"No, thanks, Mike. I'm trying to get rid of mine, too."

Many a true word is spoken through false teeth.

SYNOPSIS

MEDICAL JURISPRUDENCE

Scene—Courtroom in a lymph node.

Plaintiff—Endothelial cell.

Judge—Body Resistance.

Jury—Round cells.

Defendant—Streptococcus erysipellatus.

District Attorney—Neutrophile leucocyte.

Officers—Polymorphonuclear leucocytes.

Charge—Killing an endothelial cell.

Weapons Used—Toxin.

Lawyer for the Defense—Colon bacillus.

TRIAL

Lawyer for the defense, Colon Bacillus, stated that the accused, Streptococcus Erysipelatus, was sent by the shrewd Dame Nature to remove from the body, debris, which if allowed to accumulate would be injurious to the body. Upon entering the blood stream, a group of Endothelial Cells attacked him and in self defense, he, Streptococcus Erysipelatus, by means of poison killed an Endothelial Cell.

The District Attorney, Neutrophile Leucocyte, pleaded to the jury that the defendant did not kill in self defense, instead killed Endothelial Cell in cold blood (37 C) and rancor. Furthermore, Streptococcus Erysipelatus had always lived a parasitic life and such an existence could lead to nothing but murder in cold blood.

The District Attorney showed also an attempt on the part of accomplices of Streptococcus Erysipelatus, namely, Mr. Late Hours, Mr. Wine, and Miss Song to bribe the Right Honorable Judge Body Resistance.

The jury found Streptococcus guilty in the first degree and placed him in a cell (lymphocyte) to await annihilation.

"Our Mary" is a "wiz" on bedside technique and Al states his pleasure of being a patient, particularly after a night out.

A good time is seldom had by all.

SYNOPSIS

EUREKA!! AN OSTEOPATHIC CHEWING GUM!!!

(EDITOR'S NOTE—Several of the boys, in an attempt to meet overdue tuition, back rent, unpaid fees and social obligations, have compounded an Osteopathic chewing gum as a questionable method of redeeming their financial status. Taking advantage of the general Osteopathic principle, that where there is a joint there should be motion, and with a joint immobilization are concomitant discrepancies in blood and nerve supplies, the budding scientists aim to prove that pyorrhea and dental caries are but the mere resultants of lesions of the gomphotic joints formed by the teeth and the mandibular sockets. These, by way of resistance reductions, pave the way for the nefarious Bacillus Damfino and the skulking Streptococcus Suityourself, and are thus directly responsible for the aforementioned and related conditions. The intended purpose of the Osteopathic chewing gum is to accomplish, by lingual manipulations of the resinous cud, an adjustment of these afore-referred-to lesions, and thereby re-establish the very desirable correctness of relationship between the tooth and its respective socket. The sponsors and perpetrators of this buccal ballast hold high hopes for the success of their project, and also for the continuation of their present obscurity.)

SYNOPSIS

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

OSTEOPATHIC CHEWING GUM will cure headaches, toothaches, earaches, backaches, stomachaches, and relieve that tired feeling?

OSTEOPATHIC CHEWING GUM will positively cure lues, carcinoma, Neisserian infection, neuritis, neuralgia, pneumonia, influenza, sleeping sickness, measles, malaria, mumps, typhoid, T. B., retroflexions, antileflexions, vicerop-tosis, cardiac disturbances, tabes dorsalis, dementia precox and other mental disturbances?

OSTEOPATHIC CHEWING GUM removes morbidic zymosis, as well as the danger line, to say nothing of halitosis, coughs, colds and bunions?

IF ANY OF THE ABOVE-MENTIONED DISORDERS are not cured after one carload of OSTEOPATHIC CHEWING GUM has been chewed, we will gladly refund your money. Further, anyone who has chewed one package of O. C. G. and has a tooth left in his head will be given a beautiful hand-crocheted bedpan.

THE FOLLOWING UNSOLICITED TESTIMONIALS SPEAK FOR THEMSELVES:

B. V. D. writes: "Having once chewed O. C. G., I can chew no other."

R. S. V. P. pens: "Your recent letter, enclosing $1000 check for a testimonial, at hand, and would say, though O. C. G. is everything you state it to be, and then some, I highly recommend it to anyone suffering from the diseases you mention, as well as kleptomania, encapsulated hydrocephalus and sternocleidomastoiditis."

P. D. Q. broadcasts: "I have often wondered how tough an old horse was, but, thanks to O. C. G., I now know."

Father John says: "My medicine has been on the market for years and years, but O. C. G. has it stopped." (In justice to Father John, we should say that he is now using a new air-tight cork in his bottles.)

Lydia Dynkym states: "I thought my medicine could cure more diseases than any other marketed dope, but I take my hat off to Osteopathic Chewing Gum."

Harold Teen spills: "Lillums has been chewing O. C. G. daily for two years, during which time several severe and painful bunions and eight corns have left her."

Andy Gump narrates: "I attribute my failure in the recent presidential campaign to my weakened condition. Had it not been for O. C. G. I would have been in my grave today. But, thanks to O. C. G., it stuck by me and I chewed my way back to health."

The record to date of this pretentious array of athletic talent is eight bent windows, two battered screens, one fractured sneller, six necktie-strangled halfbacks and three dissected coats.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT, BUT—

Dr. Fischer forgot his watch chain one day.
 Dr. Holden asked a direct question.
 Dr. Jacobson gave a lecture without swearing once.
 Dr. Dufur wore a collegiate shirt and collar to match one day.
 Dr. Bailey gave a lecture without reading a newspaper clipping.
 All the Juniors and Seniors were present once for Dr. Heckman's clinic.
 We had a general assembly during which no one tried to sell the students anything.
 "Dot" and "Al" refrained from holding hands for an entire day.
 Don Acton had his suit pressed.
 Laura Bernard went an entire day without eating candy.
 Gilliss answered a question directly and without asking one.
 The fire engines went by the College one day without stopping.
 "Lib" Toomey sat through one of "Jake's" classes without once showing her incisors.
 Sherman gave a dime at a collection without growling.

Big men make big times and this proves that the Dufur Picnic of the Neuron Society was mammoth. Notice the Nurni countenance of our X-Rayer.

When a man loses confidence in himself, he makes the vote unanimous.

THE combination of an osteopathic college and a hospital is the ideal plan of organization for giving a student the necessary clinical training. This feature is emphasized at

The Philadelphia College of Osteopathy

This college has availed itself of the benefits derived from the most recent advance in osteopathic teaching and scientific equipment, while not departing from that conservation which gives stability.

EDGAR O. HOLDEN, A.B., D.O.

DEAN

We did everything but shaughi Dr. "Ed" for a picture and we finally caught him windmilling it in knickers . . . in action, as usual!

An absent-minded professor was seen walking down the street with one foot in the gutter and the other on the curb. A friend, meeting him, inquired:

"How do you do, Professor? How are you?"

"Well, I don't know," he answered. "I've just been to my Osteopath, and he told me that I had a sacroiliac lesion which made one leg longer than the other. I didn't at first believe him, but now I don't know what to think."

Don't be deceived by that "bold huntsman" expression. "Hank" ran over the beast with the car seen in the garage and what chance did a "tired" deer have with Harry?

It pays to be straight. See how the corkscrew lost out?

Compliments of the

PHILADELPHIA COUNTY
OSTEOPATHIC SOCIETY

While Dr. Dufor has never really confirmed this story, we have reason to believe it to be true. Dr. Dufor was showing Dr. Jacobson through the Dufor Hospital, when one of the inmates approached "Jake" and begged him to take his case before a magistrate and obtain his release from the hospital. "Jake," wanting to humor the patient, promised to do so.

"Now you won't forget?" pleaded the lunatic.

"Oh, no," answered "Jake."

"You are sure you would forget?"

"Absolutely not!"

Then, as "Jake" turned to go, he received a swift kick that sent him flying through the air.

"That," said the lunatic, "is in case you do forget."

"Syd" is here showing the boys one of those good times. He just ended one of those little novelties and is now giving the boys a chance to air their lungs.

GRIN

(With apologies to Robert W. Service)

If you're up against a lesion and you can't get any motion—Grin.
If you're feeling pretty groggy and you've raised much commotion—Grin.
Don't let him see you're failing; let him know with every thrust,
Tho' your hands are sore as hell, you'll set that bone or bust.
Just stand upon your pins until the beggar's in—and grin.

This is the lil' feller sobriqueted as "Tiny," all of which proves that there are some "big" men in our gang. He's won much fame as a pabulum packer.

It happened in our Freshman year. The Sophomores gave a little "get acquainted" dance for our benefit. "Hank" Gilliland—fresh from New Brunswick—was there. "Pud" Lloyd, who was the trombone player in the orchestra, seemed to fascinate "Hank," and he watched "Pud" steadily for many minutes. Finally "Hank" turned his head. There was a look of wisdom in his eye.

"That guy can't fool me," said "Hank." "There's a trick to it. He doesn't swallow that thing every time."

We defy any skeptic to say Osteopathy is without merit. We offer the following proof of what can be done by osteopathic treatments. Don Watt had been treating a woman twice a week for several months. One day she came and said: "Doctor, when I first came here I couldn't spank my baby; now I can thrash my husband. Heaven bless you!"

Dumb—"Why do they call this hospital the Philadelphia Osteopathic Hospital?"

Bell—"Because that is its name."

Tee—"Do you mean to tell me that by feeling the bones of my back you can tell me what I'm going to eat?"

Hee—"Not exactly that, but I can tell you what you're going to eat by feeling the bones in my pocket."

We carried this picture to X-Ray Newman for a diagnosis. He, on the strength of the hemifilled knowledge box, promptly declared the lightheaded gentleman a Soph. Of course, the dependable Daily Duo warrant the usual, "Ain't love grand?"

"So, at 2 o'clock in the morning your wife had twins?"

"Yup."

Prophecy of the Class of 1925

BY PAUL C. MENGLE

(This article has not been edited by request)

IT IS several years now since I toured the Orient, primarily in the interest of Medical Science. But I remember especially that I prolonged my stay in India through the Summer and Fall of 1904 and found the days there almost unbearable to people from temperate climates. So it was that after a scorching day, my wife and I strolled out for an evening's walk, little expecting to happen upon an old school chum of mine. After a few moments for exchange of greetings, he told us he was bent on visiting an old Hindu gentleman who had succeeded in unfolding the mysteries of the air. My friend urged that we accompany him, and as we had had no definite purpose in our walk, we went along.

On the way, he explained how this Hindu's invention coupled up sound waves with simultaneous light reflections. It was but a short walk and on entering a huge arched gate, we were surprised to learn that we were residing so near a garden of such splendor. It was a unique scene. A dark-skinned Magi was there gazing intently into the radiance of a crystal globe. We approached the spot unnoticed until our presence had disturbed the spell, causing the Magi to become agitated. After a brief introduction, he inquired of my friend if he had made clear to us the possibilities of the crystal and if we needed further convincing. Being Americans, we had to be shown.

It seemed coincident that a previous discussion with my friend had brought to my mind the days of P. C. O., and that now the very faces and voices could be brought to me by just stating my wish. So I begged of him to take me back to America and let me follow the success of my classmates. The Magi again squatted before the crystal, and uncovered our side of the globe.

A seeming spell was cast over everything. The turbulent glow of the crystal began to take shape and there before our eyes was Portland, Maine. On the sixth floor of a large building was the office of an Osteopathic Physician. A patient was asking for Dr. Trumbull and before his secretary could answer, Lawrence sent his resounding "here" through the air. That day he cancelled twelve appointments in order to appear in his latest hit, "Presidents and Their Troubles."

The coast of New England was in view and a ship appeared. It was the "Reflex" off for a cruise around the world. However, this was of no particular interest until I noticed the ship's physician, who at that time was trying to sell some patent remedies and half solved cross-word puzzles to the passengers. This doctor was making marvelous reductions and bargains, such as I had not heard since Kathburn tried to sell "ponies" during examinations. Sure enough it was "Doug" himself.

The surgeon on the ship was busy working on an old car down in the hold. He was explaining to several spectators that this was the ambulance which would be used in various foreign lands they would tour. For once, Randall had no sign for sale on his Ford. "Al" had succeeded in growing a fine mustache and his care-free air had been replaced by one of professional dignity.

Scenes shifted and in a quiet residential section of Boston, there were two signs on neighboring windows; the one rear, "Dr. Edith Jewell," and the other, "Dr. Lloyd Oliver." Strange to say, both Osteopathic Physicians had the same office hours, so we surmised that our suspicions of P. C. O. days had become a reality.

THE UNDERTAKER o o o

The Vienna of America was located at New Haven, Conn., for here was another famous clinic to which men of science from all parts were attracted. A glance into the amphitheatre showed three eminent physicians in consultation. As heads nodded and swayed in approval and disapproval, I recognized Drs. Blake, Integlia and Johnson—three of my colleagues of a by-gone day.

Among the society resorts of Long Island, Dr. Mary Hiller had made her professional reputation. The office was closed and a sign on the door said: "Off to Europe—Back after three months."

The well-known Wilcox Sanitarium nestled quietly among the hills of Olean, N. Y. Dr. "Willie" was just completing her book on Diseases of the Nervous System and had made the study of her subject more interesting to students by discussing various kinds of ballet dancing as a therapeutic aid in treating these maladies.

The tennis tournaments were on at Forest Hills and the Veteran Finals had just ended. The crowds were proclaiming Dr. Fischer a champion. Besides a flourishing Quaker City practice, Carl had found time to be World's Champion several times and now had made his debut as a veteran.

At a very opportune time did we glance at lower Manhattan, as the Olympic athletes were just leaving for the games abroad, and with them their medical director, Dr. Jensen. When "Artie" joined the boys in waving their farewells from the deck, the cherished memory returned to me of how he delivered a message while under fire during the decisive battle of Spring Garden Street.

Situated in the Metropolis, and joining the other sky-scrapers in their heavenly loftiness, was a fine building devoted to Osteopathy. On the ground floor to the left of the entrance were the offices of Drs. Levitt and Cattaneo, Specialists in Rare Diseases. At the expense of some twenty patients in the reception-room, the two physicians were discussing, "What had become of the appendix now extinct in 85 per cent. of cases." Over the door was a little motto: "Patients come and patients go, but arguments go on forever."

Directly across the hall, Dr. Berger met the problems of life. Ted seemed very busy, and, as he was a member of the New York Osteopathic Board, there was little doubt that he was making out some "stickers" for the next examinations. The walls of his office reminded me of the old Senior room blackboard because they were decorated with many pictures, some wise, and some otherwise.

A suite of rooms on the top floor comprised the headquarters of the A. O. A. Journal. The editor was seated at his desk, pen in hand, but fast asleep. Naturally it was Dr. Ernest Hunt, not yet having caught up in sleep.

Over in Brooklyn practised a physician who some years back had been known as Dr. Brown, but now Dr. Brown plus. In the guise of a patient Cupid had apparently taken some of her time and records showed 100 per cent. results.

Then there appeared a scene in northern Jersey. The New Jersey Osteopathic Convention had adjourned the day before, and Dr. and Mrs. Gibbs were entertaining a week-end party of Twenty-fivers at their country home. Dr. Grinwis, the new State President, and Dr. Hamilton, Secretary of the A. O. A., were the guests of honor. Although Dr. Hazen Lachner was Jersey City's leading children's Specialist, she still retained her demureness and quietly arrived driving her electric coupé. Drs. Hal Colburn and Paul Smith, each with their families, were motoring over from Montclair in their Rolls Royces. Dr. Bowman, the chief surgeon of the Atlantic City playground, was delayed by the emergencies complicating the Beauty Pageant. Drs. "Les" Stringer and "Syd" Kanev had deserted their thriving New York practices, and were furnishing the music to accompany Dr. Cossaboom's solos. "Cossie" was now Seabright's leading physician and church soloist. Dr. "Gus" Reid alighted from his aeroplane, a little late as usual. He had been down to Cape May to pick up Dr. Loscalzo, but as Horace had a date for a beach party, he had to decline the flight. Dr. Lindsay, a prominent aurist, had motored over from Morristown to enliven the festivities. He was still the same "Jolly Jack." Everything progressed smoothly until suddenly Hal Colburn, Jr., and the younger Smith staged an impromptu bout to decide whose father had signed the more death certificates. The fathers ended the argument, both sides claiming the decision.

The National Association of Physical Directors was in session at Camden and was being addressed by Dr. John Allen. As lead-off man on that famous roll call, "Johnny" could give some personal ideas on the necessity of keeping physically strong and alert.

The Profession in Philadelphia had been strengthened by more members of that illustrious class of '25 than any other one place. A number of these had associated themselves with the North Eastern Osteopathic Hospital. Realizing that first impressions go a great way, the appointment of Obstetrician was given to Dr. Muller. Contrary to all symptoms and signs manifested during college days, Adelaide had set sail on the Sea of Matrimony by sharing the responsibilities of a Minister.

Pediatrics was well taken care of by Dr. Lutz. At last he had found a way to give free play to his suppressed desires. A glance into his office showed him doing a side-bend flexion and rotation trick on the chandelier for the benefit of his little patient.

The famous twin specialties G. U. and G. Y. were ably handled by Drs. Anderson and Spaeth respectively. "Andy" was still the same Beau Brummel and Bill's alopecia greatly added to his professional dignity.

Chief consultant and advisor was none other than Dr. Cole. His favorite prescription had not changed since clinic days, invariably being the Buick Daily Dozen.

The surgical part of this Staff was filled by Drs. Ent, Gerlach, and Slifer. These three were so efficient in stimulating the auditory tract to a state of cerebral fatigue and general analgesia, that anesthetics were rarely needed. Their motto was, "Surgery first, last and all the time."

tude combined with her prescriptions for calisthenic dancing had greatly increased

Dr. McGenna had made a reputation as a Geriatrician. Her sympathetic attitude toward the human span. However, in order to get them coming and going, Loretta had wedded an undertaker—a great organization and even greater co-operation.

Scenes changed, and at 19th and Wallace streets, we discovered Dr. Jacobson's laboratory. As in former days, his co-worker was Dr. Winant.

On the sight of our old hunting grounds, some twenty buildings greeted our eyes. These represented our college home. Within the assembly hall, opening exercises were just starting and the speaker addressing some three hundred and thirteen freshmen was heard to say, "It is indeed a privilege and a pleasure to stand before the most intelligent looking group of students that ever matriculated . . . You should be the most successful class that ever graduated, Etc., and Etc." The next address was made by Dr. Larkin, another professor on the Faculty. The only Lady Physician to speak was Dr. Myfanwy Evans, Dean of the Women's College, the two schools having been separated since 1930.

DOUCHOL

THE NON-POISONOUS, ALKALINE ANTISEPTIC

Soothing, cooling and healing to all mucous surfaces, easy and economical to use.

The practitioner of today realizes the importance of personal hygiene in maintaining bodily health and vigor.

In offering Douchol to the Profession, we believe we are offering a product ideal for the purposes indicated.

Douchol is an absolutely non-poisonous powder immediately soluble in warm water, yielding a non-toxic solution, alkaline in reaction of powerful antiseptic properties, entirely safe and harmless to use on all mucous and skin surfaces, prevents infection and acts as a rapid solvent of mucous secretions.

For Leucorrhea and Vaginitis, its action will be found truly marvelous. A heaping teaspoonful dissolved in two quarts of warm water produces a solution free from disagreeable odor, invigorating and pleasant to use.

For the Nose and Throat, one-half teaspoonful dissolved in a glass of warm water, using a nasal douche cup, will afford prompt relief in Catarrhal conditions, in Rhinitis and Coryza, as a gargle for the relief of sore and ulcerated throats, its action is prompt and sure.

For tired, aching and sore feet, grateful relief will be experienced, by soaking the feet in a solution of Douchol.

For bathing Skin Eruptions, Measles, Chicken Pox, Prickly Heat, frequent applications of a solution of one tablespoonful of Douchol to a pint of water will give comforting relief.

Douchol is offered in screw-cap jars at $1.00 each—six jars for $5.00. We will also supply Douchol in small packages for dispensing to your patients at $2.00 per dozen. Or in bulk at $1.00 per pound—five pounds for $4.50. All prices include delivery charges.

Write today for a sample; don't delay.

THE BELMONT CO.

CHEMISTS

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

The Post Graduate Department was graced by the presence of Dr. Stollery, his third return to P. C. O. "Bob" was quite well known by his widely advertised products especially his "Antiseptic Mentholated Ointment" and his book, "A Little Knowledge is a Dangerous Thing."

North Philadelphia had attracted one of our number back in the dark ages of 1925, so we were little surprised to find the office of Dr. Woods along the boulevard. In addition to a fine practice, "Jimmy" was the proud possessor of that same attraction which, by the way, grew greater day by day.

Dr. Ellen Crosley as such could not be located, for now that name was only a prefix. The old saying, "Two heads is better than one" holds good, even in the osteopathic field.

The Baltimore Osteopathic Hospital was well established by 1940. A strange thing indeed to see the great surgeon, Dr. Hines, in the operating room, gaining altitude with the aid of a small bench.

In the fertile Lancaster valley, we found the famous Shaw-Powell Sanatorium, an institution in which many of the reports current in scientific circles had their origin. Closely associated with it, and of equal renown, in the Osteopathic world, were the van de Sane laboratories. By virtue of her sex, Dr. Louise Crosswell was very successful as head of the publication department.

The offices of Dr. Klinger Hunt were located at Harrisburg. Although closely associated with the practice of Medicine, she still remained true to the colors of Osteopathy.

The practice of Dr. Yoder was confined to the wilds of Pennsylvania. With an office in Bellefonte and several high-powered motor cars, his field was as widespread as the fresh air of which he has been an advocator for the past twenty years.

Among the remains of the old city of Johnstown, the following sign was discovered, "Dr. James Rishell, physical examiner for the Flunk Insurance Co." The eminent physician was preparing to examine a young patient by explaining to her the importance of a complete physical examination. Evidently the trouble encountered during "Jimmy's" Junior year was only the beginning of such difficulties.

Chicago with its college was ushered in with a roar, and there to our surprise was Dr. Soden, techniquing as usual. Enrolled in the Post Graduate Department, but this time as professors, were Drs. Sinsabaugh and Robertson.

Nothing of importance attracted us until a coral isle appeared in mid-Pacific. At last Dr. McInnis had put her phenomenal voice to some use, for there beneath a threatening cocoanut-tree she was expounding the English language to a group of natives.

The Philippines presented a very interesting scene, especially when I found that I knew the Sanitary Engineer, Dr. Vergera. So familiar did Enrique seem, that I was just going to have one of those fine chats with him, when I was reminded it was all a vision.

The old Magi laughed, for I had been under his spell during this wonderful experience. I was satisfied as to the possibilities of his invention, and as we strolled back to our bungalow, life found a new light, for I knew that the Class of 1925 had made its mark.

Place Your Record Book In Good Hands

Whether your record will measure up to your ideals,—or be a disappointment, will be determined in a great measure by the extent with which you can depend upon your printer for counsel, co-operation and support.

It is with pardonable pride we give below extracts from letters received, showing our interest and help is perhaps more intimate and personal than is the rule.

"In the name of the class, I wish to thank you for your co-operation with, and kindness to us in all matters pertaining to the book. The present graduating class is to be congratulated on having such an excellent House to prepare its Record."

"In behalf of the Class, I wish to express our appreciation and entire satisfaction with our Record, its quality and appearance. The service and co-operation you gave us is highly commendable."

"I wish to thank you for the Class and particularly for myself, for the assistance and advice you have given in getting out our book."

"I wish to express my appreciation of the excellent work done by Clark Printing House. I also wish to say that your help and advice have been invaluable."

"I have found the Clark Printing House stands for promptness, dependability, accuracy and service. These qualities make the putting out of a Record a pleasure."

"Books are going fine. Letters are pouring in from faculty, department heads and students congratulating us on the book. I want you to share in it, for to you the major success of this book was due."

We are interested in producing Records of the highest standard, books in which the School and ourselves can take pride.

To this end our entire organization is committed. You are assured of that helpful co-operation, care in handling, best workmanship and attention to small details that show in the finished work.

It will mean much to you to have your Record in competent hands.
